Overview

The `README.md` was updated to reflect new feature bullets, a revised roadmap, and clearer prerequisites. No code-level changes were made.

Key changes

- Documentation workspace and Git & GitHub*
- bullets added at lines 22-23 (diff lines R22, R23).
- Old Git integration bullet (`git difftool --dir-diff`) removed at line 27; new bullet covering status, publish, PR compare via worktrees, and GitHub CLI added at line 29 (diff lines L27, R29).
- Prerequisites expanded to include `Git` and optional `GitHub CLI` at lines 34-36 (diff lines L34, R36).
- Note that the first graph build compiles the in-repo engine (`npm run graph:build` runs automatically before `npm run build` / `electron:dev`) inserted at lines 51-52 (diff lines R51-52).
- Reference to `THIRD_PARTY_NOTICES.md` added at lines 70-71 (diff lines R70-71).

Impact

- Documentation now matches the current feature set, reducing user confusion.
- Roadmap and prerequisites are accurate for contributors.
- No runtime or API changes; the build process remains unchanged.

Risks & follow-ups

- Verify that the new Git integration features are fully implemented elsewhere (unknown from the available diff).
- Confirm that `npm run graph:build` indeed runs before `electron:dev` as described (unknown from the available diff).
- Ensure `THIRD_PARTY_NOTICES.md` exists and contains correct attributions (unknown from the available diff).
- Check that the removed `git difftool --dir-diff` bullet does not appear in other documentation.
