Overview

A new file, `CONTRIBUTIONS.md`, has been added to the repository root. The file spans lines 1-98 and introduces a structured guide for contributors.

Key changes

- File addition: `CONTRIBUTIONS.md` (lines 1-98).
- Content: Sections added at the following diff lines:
 - R1: `# Contributing to NovaDiff`
 - R3: `Thank you for considering contributing to NovaDiff! 🎉`
 - R5: `We welcome contributions of all kinds ...`
 - R7: ```

Code of Conduct`

- R9: `By participating ... Code of Conduct`
- R11: ```

How to Contribute`

- Subsequent sections cover bug reporting, development setup, project structure, pull-request workflow, coding guidelines, testing, AI/LLM contributions, current priorities, and a closing thank-you.
- Links: References to `CODE_OF_CONDUCT.md`, the GitHub issues page, and the Rust installation guide (`https://rustup.rs/`).
- Formatting: Markdown with fenced code blocks for Git commands and installation steps.

Impact

- Documentation: Provides a single, centralized location for contribution guidelines, improving onboarding.
- Runtime: No code or build changes; the addition is purely informational.
- CI/CD: If the project lints or builds documentation, the new file will be included automatically.

Risks & follow-ups

- README linkage: Verify that the README or other docs reference `CONTRIBUTIONS.md` so contributors can find it.
- Markdown linting: It is unknown from the diff whether the repository runs markdown linting; run `npm run lint:md` if available.

- Link validity: Check that the URLs to `CODE_OF_CONDUCT.md` and the GitHub issues page resolve correctly.
- Future maintenance: Monitor for required updates when major project changes occur (e.g., new build steps or tooling).
